

The Dragon and the Two Beasts

You need

scissors, coloured pencils,
a lolly stick or straw,
sticky tape

The idea

Two masks — one that looks gentle, one that looks fierce. Hold the gentle one up and speak in the fierce voice. It stays with them.

✂ cut along the dashed lines

 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10	 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10
 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10	 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10
 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10	 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10
 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10	 "This calls for patient endurance and faithfulness on the part of God's people." Revelation 13:10

✂ cut along the dashed lines

Today at church: The Dragon and the Two Beasts (Revelation 13)

Ask at home:

1. How do you tell a copy from the real thing?
2. Have you ever seen someone be kind on the outside and unkind underneath?
3. Why is "looks like a lamb, sounds like a dragon" a useful test?

Prayer: Jesus, thank you that you are the real one and not a copy. Help us to listen to how things sound, not just look at how they shine. Give us patience when standing with you costs something. Amen.